About CP Medical

For more than 20 years, CP Medical has been a leading U.S. manufacturer of surgical solutions, specializing in products for wound closure as well as for oncology procedures and specialty surgical applications. Our deep-rooted experience and pioneering solutions for surgical applications have enabled us to expand our product portfolio of suture and wound closure products for the medical market. In addition to a comprehensive suture product line, we also provide specialty items for the oncology market, such as fiducial markers and brachytherapy needles.

Our legacy of product performance rivals the industry leaders. The materials we use to manufacture products – from sutures to needles to packaging – is of the highest quality and provides the best, most consistent performance. Our focus on quality extends throughout the organization from the raw materials we source to the exacting attention on finished goods to the care we provide with every order and every customer. CP Medical's quality hallmarks are achieved through the rigor of training, inspection, testing and documentation and include:

- ISO 13485 certification
- FDA registration for markets in the United States
- CE Mark for markets outside the United States

CP Medical was founded on the belief that our customers' success is our greatest achievement. In a dynamic marketplace, our customer philosophy has been steadfast – consistently deliver superior products at competitive prices and provide the highest degree of attention to our customers. We differentiate ourselves by providing valuable services, such as field support and marketing materials to help you achieve success in an increasingly fierce marketplace. We ensure distributors and end-users have a high degree of knowledge and confidence in the products and support we provide.

In 2005, CP Medical became a wholly owned subsidiary of Georgia-based Theragenics Corporation (NYSE: TGX), one of the nation's leading medical device companies for general surgery and prostate cancer treatment. Theragenics is comprised of two business units: surgical products and brachytherapy. While CP Medical operates with the nimbleness and flexibility of an independent company, we benefit from the considerable resources of our parent company and our surgical products sister companies, Galt Medical and NeedleTech. Together, we manufacture wound closure, vascular access and specialty needle products. Theragenics' brachytherapy business manufactures and distributes "seeds" used primarily in the minimally invasive treatment of localized prostate cancer. The Company's brachytherapy product line includes its palladium-103 TheraSeed® device and its iodine-125 Agx100™ device.

More than a manufacturer....we are a PARTNER!
